

society because they will not welcome nor seek the vision of the most Holy God, that once dominated the consciousness of prophet and psalmist, to fill their own souls. We Jews are starving ourselves spiritually today, and therefore we do not rise to the occasion and become brotherly and friendly towards one another. The more we aspire through prayer to become better than what we are, the more we meditate and ponder over the ideals contained in Scripture and later tradition, the more real power will be ours to deal with our neighbor, Jew or Gentile, in the right way.

You may therefore provide opportunities for people to work together for some cause or to enjoy themselves, but unless their Jewish ideals guide them, they will act as a clique and will never be immune from petty jealousies and a mean spirit. The "social center" does not provide for all the leisure moments of the young and their elders, and could not in the very nature of things do so. The temptation "to have a good time" in some questionable way, when they are absent from home or synagogue cannot be resisted unless the guiding power of the ideal is present to come to their aid.

The various social activities are not to be derided as valueless. They serve as actual means for cementing the ties that should bind all Jews in a grand brotherhood and in giving concrete realization to the concepts of righteousness and justice as the genius of the Jew has always conceived them. "Avodah, prayer" and "Torah, study," as well as "Tsadokoh," social service, are indispensable pillars of our religion.

At the Rochester Conference there were addresses given by rabbis that pleaded for a more spiritual message on the part of the Liberal Jewish rabbi.

These rabbis do not take social service as the Alpha and Omega of the endeavors of the synagogue of today. Rabbi Samuel Goldenson, in concluding his paper on "What Is the Influence of Judaism as a Religion Upon the Jew of Today?" says: "Our energies therefore should be engaged in strengthening every wall and pillar of our religious structure. For the indifference of our people and for the tendency on the part of some to seek spiritual meat and drink elsewhere issue not from caprice, but rather from some genuine human want, which we evidently do not satisfy. We must bring this sustaining and life-giving nourishment, the Bible, to them directly with such zeal and enthusiasm, with such faith and consecration, that they will be drawn to us."

Rabbi Fineschreiber is thinking along the same lines and he concludes his paper on "The Decay of Theology in Popular Religion" by urging rabbis in their preaching "to again emphasize the note of profound faith in the living God."

And finally, we have at this same conference Professor I. Leo Sharfman, of the economics department in Michigan University, conclude his address on "Religion and the Synagogue" with the admonition to our Reform Rabbinate: "The synagogue must return to religion—to an abiding faith in man and God as the fundamental of all human aspirations and all human activities. It must return to spiritual religion. . . ."

Enough, I hope, has been quoted from the conference addresses to make the reader desirous of obtaining the Yearbook and perusing it, and also to make clear that the "Back to Normalcy" movement in Judaism has been fairly launched and with God's help will succeed.

GALICIAN JEWS SENDING SERBIAN TIMBER TO PALESTINE.

Lemberg (Jewish News Service).—A group of Galician Jewish merchants made a contract with the Serbian timber company "Slavonia" in Azram, from whom they purchased large quantities of timber for Palestine.

The first transport of one hundred cars will shortly be dispatched to Palestine.

In Palestine there appears at present a grave shortage of timber and Jewish merchants expect to make large profits in the deal.

JEWISH WORKMEN'S PARTIES UNITED IN KOVNO RELIEF WORK.

Kovno, Oct. 24 (Special cable to I. J. P. B.).—A committee has been formed in this city, consisting of representatives of both the "Bund" and the Poale-Zion organization to take care of Jewish workmen from Vilna, arriving here by the hundreds. The clubrooms of both parties have been given up for homes for the refugees, four hundred having been housed in such manner. A free citizen's laundry was formed and free medical aid is given to the refugees. An attempt was made to give workmen jobs and the work of the committee is generally considered splendid. Mr. Kaufman, of the Joint Distribution Committee, assigned ten thousand marks for the purposes of the committee.

The author of the article is a Jesuit priest named Mallon from Palestine. He does not express any opinion, but only states facts as he sees them.
